Press Release

Access Display Group Adds Jazmin Sanchez to Website Team

Freeport, New York., October 22, 2010

Access Display Group, Inc. (ADG), a leading designer and manufacturer of changeable poster display frames and sign holders, has hired Jazmin Sanchez as assistant web administrator.

Jazmin joins ADG's growing team of creative professionals that are helping ADG expand its online presence. ADG is in the midst of an aggressive campaign to boost its e-commerce capabilities, launching six new e-commerce websites over the last two years: Displays4Sale.com, SwingPanels.com, FloorStands.com, SnapFrames4Sale.com, OutdoorDisplayCases.com and SwingFrames4Sale.com.

So far, the strategy has been paying off: Access Display Group made the Inc. 5000 list of fastest growing companies in America for the second year in a row.

As assistant web administrator, Jazmin will work closely with the website management team headed by Brian McAuley, adding product pages for a growing list of specialty display products. She will also be involved in developing other website projects.

Jazmin has a degree in video gaming and web development from Sanford Brown Institute. She worked as an intern at ADG for several months prior to being hired full time.

Craig Abrams, ADG marketing and sales director, says, "We are pleased with Jazmin's quick learning abilities and understanding of what is needed to enhance our websites. Management is happy to bring her on board, along with our other recent graphic design hires, to contribute the talent needed and help us achieve our e-commerce goals."

Jazmin says, "I enjoy applying my creative expertise to wide-ranging website projects and find satisfaction in improving my design skills every day."
